If you feel the darkness in your soul, “the light is on for you.” Each Tuesday during Lent, from 6:00 to 8:00 pm, every parish in the Archdiocese has been offering Confessions. The “light being on” throughout the whole Archdiocese is a sign to our people of God’s desire for reconciliation with them and His great delight in bestowing His mercy upon them.

At Holy Name we have been holding confessions in our Pastoral Center. I would like to thank Fr. Simon for sacrificing his day-off, so he can avail himself for these Tuesday evening confessions. I remember that First Tuesday, no one came for confession. I reported the result to some priests in the different parishes via text message saying: “No sinners at Holy Name!”

Reminds me of a story of a bookkeeper going over the parish’s record to find a suspicious receipt from a local paint store signed by someone named Fred Christians. He wasn’t aware of anyone by that name who would be buying paint for the parish, so he called the store.

“I’m sorry,” he told the manager, “but I don’t believe there are any Christians here at St. John’s Parish.”

I am excited to welcome our new Christians at the Easter Vigil through the waters of Baptism. Some will also receive the Sacrament of Confirmation.

In preparation for Confirmation, the candidates from our Religious Education program will be receiving the Sacrament of Confirmation this Sunday, after a Retreat this Saturday.

Likewise, the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women (ACCW) will have their Lenten Recollection this Sunday, including a mass at 1PM at the Pastoral Center Chapel. Cathy Mibach, our parishioner and the president of ACCW, had asked me, being the group’s spiritual director, to celebrate the mass and give the Lenten Recollection. She gave me the liberty to choose the topic for my reflection. One Sunday, at the 9:30AM mass which is our Family mass, the sound system was acting up and the speakers were squeaking, little kids were crying from different directions, and then suddenly a firetruck and ambulance passed by blaring their sirens. I asked: “How can we pray amidst the noise?” If our hearts are at peace with God, I believe we can. With that simple and practical experience as my inspiration, I came up with the topic for the Lenten Reflection of our Catholic Women: “Peace, I Give You: Peaceful Living in a Busy Life.” Amidst the busyness in life and the demands of daily living, we can still find peace.

It is my hope also that amidst your busy time, you will find the time to be at peace with the Lord, especially this coming Holy Week.

“Don’t let your hands be busy pointing at what’s wrong with the world and other people. Let your hands be so busy catching blessings that you don’t have the capacity to hold on to grudges.”

FAZtor’s Notes
by Fr. Arnold Zamora

Another month is here! It is the first Sunday in April, but it is also the last Sunday in Lent. Holy Week starts next Sunday. I hope our hearts are now ready to be able to experience a very meaningful and fruitful celebration of the Holy Week.

Period of Purification and Enlightenment

“This is the final step in helping RCIA catechumens put themselves in the shoes of others. As we admonish the elect to “humbly confess themselves to be sinners” (RCIA153A), we must first confess that we are no less sinful than they are. Purification and enlightenment are goals we all strive for. And this journey leaves no room for hypocrisy, which Pope Francis says, “can kill a community.” The only solution is prayer: Lord, may I never be a hypocrite, may I know how to say the truth and if I cannot say it, to be quiet. But never, never a hypocrite. (Pope Francis)

FIFTH SUNDAY OF LENT: April 7, 2019

There is a tough phrase at the end of the Gospel we have just heard, "Go and sin no more." It's like a sting in the tail, standing in contrast to the compassion of Jesus in his encounter with the woman. Yet, on closer inspection, it is the most important phrase in the story. And that's saying something because this dramatic event is the only one in the Gospel where Jesus confronts sexual sin, where only the woman is dragged from the scene of the crime to answer the charge of adultery. Is it any wonder that in some early manuscripts of John's Gospel this story was left out, its authorship questioned? The dangerous memory of Jesus' compassion toward the woman was too strong in the minds of John's community for it to be excluded, however, and so it remains as an inspired text for us to make our own. It is sometimes very important to hear Jesus say to us, especially in the area of our sexuality, "I do not condemn you."

So often, however, we want Jesus to leave it at that. But Jesus goes further. He tells it as it is. If any of us want life and want it to the full, we have to stop doing the destructive things that get us into trouble in the first place. It does not matter if it is drinking, gambling, eating, working, stealing, sexual dysfunction, being into pornography, being violent at home or any other type of obsessive compulsive behavior, there is little point in being sorry for the consequences of our weaknesses and not changing the pattern of behavior that leads us to ruin each time.

Twelve step programs enshrine the wisdom of today's Gospel in how they help us to own up to the destructive behavior of our lives and yet give us hope to live beyond our worst moments.

Steps four to ten say:

Step 4. I have made a searching and fearless moral inventory of myself.

Step 5. I have admitted to God and to another the exact nature of my wrongs.

Step 6. I am entirely ready to have God remove all these defects of character.

Step 7. Humbly ask God to remove my shortcomings.

Step 8. Made a list of all persons I had harmed and became willing to make amends to them all.

Step 9. Made direct amends to such people wherever possible except where to do so would injure them or others.

Step 10. Continued to take personal inventory and when I was wrong promptly admitted it.

The thing I like best about these is that they are pro-active. They alert us to the fact that the best pathway to know healing and forgiveness is not to be passive, but to be active and admit our own faults and work to heal them. Some of us may have been given a tough hand from life's deck of cards, but we do not have to be passive victims, never able to change the cycles of destructive behavior. If the steps work and we trust today's Gospel then we can be happy, healed and forgiven because we heal and forgive others.

Jesus bestows great dignity on the woman by saving her from being condemned to death, but even more so he knows that it does not have to be like this and so challenges her to turn her life around.

May we hear the same challenge in this final week of Lent. No matter what we have ever done, sexually or otherwise, we are greater than our worst moments. Jesus loves us enough not to condemn us, but to give us this Eucharist so that we might find the strength and hope to stop doing the things that destroy us and to live a life that leads to peace and joy.

Stewards Corner

At a Stewardship formation class, the pastor asked a simple question: “Suppose you had the chance to be one person associated with those last days of Jesus in Jerusalem, whom would you choose to be?” A young mother named Ana replied, “There are a lot of people in the passion story whose place I could never fill,” she said, “I could not carry my Master’s cross as Simon of Cyrene did. Nor could I have followed him out to the garden as Peter, James and John did. But, I could make ready for him the best room in my house, where he might eat the last supper with his disciples. I could promise him that it would be made ready to his satisfaction.”

There was something very simple in her testimony, but those who knew Ana were well aware of the truth in her words: “...it would be made ready to his satisfaction.” She was that kind of a person.

Someone had to make ready a room and furnish it. There is no record of any such thing in the Scripture, but it is easy to imagine some housewife telling her Christian friends, years afterward, how the Lord had come to their home that night and had eaten that last solemn meal under her roof. She never wrote a gospel nor became a martyr, nor did she hold an office in the church, but she could provide a furnished room!

A great deal of the service of the kingdom of God must be rendered by those who never get their names into the papers, are never publicly commended, and are never elected as a delegate. But there is need for a furnished upper room and some devoted heart furnishes it without thought of publicity or commendation. In the eternal records of God the name is inscribed and after it the notation clearly written: “Well done, thou good and faithful steward.”

Doing the Impossible!

Sometimes true stewardship seems impossible. “How can I do more for my parish? I’m so busy.” “How can I give more money? I’m in debt as it is.” “Share my talents? I’m no musician or artist.”

It’s true, if we continue to think that way, we won’t do more. However, we are people raising the barriers, not God. God does not require us to do the impossible. There is always a way to do what the Lord asks. It’s up to us to find out how, through prayer, thought, and commitment.
